THE COUNTRY MOUSE AND THE CITY CAT ✓

Cuthbert Country Mouse is a very modern butcher. He blows up his own brand of sausages as easily as if he were merely blowing bubbles. Sauerkraut is produced by immersing the store broom into a bowl and cutting off the straws. Now, among the cash and credit customers of Cuthbert is his sweetheart, little Mary Mouse, a baby doll petite. She sometimes 'phones to Cuthbert and frequently goes to the store in person. One fine day while she is tripping gaily along the street toward the butcher shop, Charlie City Cat, a regular slicker observes her with extreme interest. When Mary arrives at the store she finds Cuthbert executing a jolly dance. He escorts her into the shop and soon they are followed by Charlie City Cat who has driven up in his auto. Cuthbert protects Mary from the wiles of Charlie by shooting him out of the store, whereupon he lands back in his auto. ^{When} Cuthbert runs out of his store after Charlie, the slicker presses a device at the side of his car which springs out and knocks the Mouse unconscious. Mary comes out of the store and disregarding her fallen sweetheart, flirts with Charlie who seizes her and speeds away cityward. The couple arrive at a notorious Kat Nip Joint where felines are dancing with wild abandon. Charlie and Mary join in the dancing and soon wend their way into a vacant room. After locking the door, Charlie swallows the key. Realizing her predicament, Mary tears herself away from Charlie who pursues her about the room. About this time Cuthbert Country Mouse revives, misses his sweetheart, jumps upon his wooden horse and goes in search of her. As an airplane hovers overhead, Cuthbert jumps to the rope ladder and is soon in the air. All this while poor Mary is being chased about the room by the wicked feline. But her country sweetheart makes a dive from the wings of the airplane and falls through the roof of the den right outside the door where his dear Mary, is held captive. Hearing her screams he pushes down the door upon the villainous City Cat, rushes in and rescues Mary. The couple then make a quick get-away and Mary learns the true worth of her country sweetheart.

Thus we learn the moral that:

An Honest Heart 'Neath A Tattered Shirt
Is Better Far Than A City Flirt.
